

Real-life stories

Read about the support that two students are receiving.

A midwifery ^[1] and a physiotherapy ^[2] student tell their stories.

Midwifery student ^[1] Sarah Billington talks about the support she's receiving because of ill health. Sarah ^[3] says: "I had been juggling an existing hospital job with my university course and in hindsight I feel perhaps the stress of doing too much may have contributed to my health problems."

And physiotherapy student ^[2] Heather Beebe talks about her dyslexia diagnosis and the support she's receiving. Heather ^[4] says: "It was a talk by the university disability adviser that spurred me on to seek help from the university, because he made it sound as if it was ok to have a problem and that support was available."

Read Sarah ^[3] and Heather ^[4]'s stories.

Source URL: <https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/career-planning/study-and-training/considering-or-university/support-university/real-life-stories>

Links

[1] <https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/i-am/considering-or-university/studying-midwifery>

[2] <https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/i-am/considering-or-university/studying-be-allied-health-professional>

[3] <https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/i-am/considering-or-university/support-university/real-life-stories/real-life-story-sarah-billington>

[4] <https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/i-am/considering-or-university/support-university/real-life-stories/real-life-story-heather-beebe>