

"I'm proud of my 18-year career in the NHS. I'm still progressing."

Mayumi is a Ward Manager at Neuro Specialist hospital in London. Listen to her story and hear how, even with a long and accomplished career in the NHS, she's still learning and developing every day.

Mayumi Rossi

Ward manager at neuro specialist hospital

Pause video? Play video? Mute video  Unmute video

Hi, my name is Mayumi Rossi. I'm a ward manager at a neuro specialist hospital in London and I have been working in the NHS for 18 years.

Career progression is very important for me. I was successful in my career development from a staff nurse to a ward manager. I was very lucky to achieve a post graduate neuroscience degree with full funding from the NHS. I have also attended national conferences . If you wish to challenge and develop your career and academic education, the NHS will support you.

My advice if you are thinking about joining the NHS for a career, you may feel the same anxiety as I felt before you come, but don't worry about it - we are looking after you.

Source URL:<https://www.healthcareers.nhs.uk/we-are-the-nhs/nursing-careers/international-retention/mayumi-rossi>