

Dual training alongside general internal medicine is possible, in a range of specialties including acute internal medicine, respiratory medicine and endocrinology and diabetes.

It is also possible to take one years further training for sub-specialty recognition in stroke medicine (ST8). A second year of advanced training is required to become a consultant in stroke medicine.